Sandy Claws

By Lisa Crawford Watson

Deeply devoted

His brother was experiencing a void in his life, and he decided the guy needed a dog. So, he gave him his own beloved Vizsla, "Kramer."

But this left him without a companion. When Covid curtailed his consulting work, he decided to visit another brother in upstate New York during his "pandemic pause." While there, he decided he wanted a puppy, and in June 2020, he brought home a 10-week-old Vizsla he named Dino Ferrari.

"When Dino was 2 or 3 months old, we did a cross-country drive to San Jose for a job opportunity," he said. "Every time we made a pit stop, he'd pull the toilet paper all over the room. He was cute as a button."

Three years later, his person was ready to return to his home and his hospitality career on the Monterey Peninsula, so the pair settled in Monterey, where Dino goes to daycare and waits to curl up on the couch with him at the end of the day. He seems to tolerate daycare but delights when his person arrives to pick him up.

"I love my job, but what makes my life so fulfilling is Dino Ferrari, who's 5," he said. "He's playful and affectionate, and Vizslas are considered Velcro dogs because they stick to your leg. If I could tie a fan to his exuberant tail, it would blow everything away."

Dino, whose spirited energy needs an outlet, loves to work it out on Carmel Beach. The pair start at the south end of the beach and walk toward Pebble Beach, with Dino often running ahead and then returning to check in.

"The comfort Dino provides, helps me de-stress at the end of the day," his person said. "I think it's the same for him."
